QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED BY DEVICES

The first question to be answered by devices is the question of the validity of the self-report. It is well known that the self-report is often unreliable, and that the subject may be influenced by a variety of factors, such as the desire to please, the desire to avoid punishment, or the desire to avoid embarrassment. The second question to be answered by devices is the question of the validity of the observation. It is well known that the observation is often unreliable, and that the observer may be influenced by a variety of factors, such as the desire to please, the desire to avoid punishment, or the desire to avoid embarrassment.

DISCUSSION

The first question to be answered by devices is the question of the validity of the self-report. It is well known that the self-report is often unreliable, and that the subject may be influenced by a variety of factors, such as the desire to please, the desire to avoid punishment, or the desire to avoid embarrassment.
