Personal History: Never very strong but never ill until three years ago when he was in Royal Victoria Hospital, for three months with the same complaints. He was a very heavy drinker of whisky and spirits and the doctor considered his condition to be cirrhosis of the liver. It began with pain over liver, no vomiting. After six weeks he was sent into hospital and the pain became more general with swelling of abdomen, and a mild degree of jaundice. He was kept on a milk and victrol diet for three months in bed, no operation, nor tapping. He was fairly well rested in six months but very nervous. He has drunk fairly heavily since then. Drinking rum here. Outtaking anything hot, of scotch, pickles, hot tea etc.

Since the long march of this summer, sleeping under the cold and wet he has had a cough, little sputum, in the morning. He has been always thin but now feels very much weaker, some night sweats, and blood spit.
